Arts Education & Outreach

Funding Objectives:

Provide high-quality arts education programming to youth during school, afterschool, and summer programs.

Ensure that all children—regardless of income level—have the opportunity to experience and learn about the arts.

| The Palm Beach Symphony Society Inc  | Funding supports educational programs for Title 1 schools and low-income youth. The One Small Step project brings a virtual, yet interactive orchestral dance performance to students in grades K-12 and provides in-school workshops that integrate science concepts with dance and music. Additionally, the in-school concert series and musical lecture demonstrations brings musicians up close and personal to guide, introduce, inform, and mentor upper elementary through high school students interested in music. Finally, the Symphony awards instruments to underserved students, school music programs, and an advanced instrument to up to three high school seniors per year. | 3,665            | Palm Beach County, FL                    | No                          |
| South Florida Symphony Orchestra Inc | The mission of The South Florida Symphony Orchestra is to delight, inspire and educate the community through music. The funds support the Symphony in the Schools program, which facilitates engagement in the arts for Broward County children and their families working primarily through the Broward County Public School district 'Turnaround Arts' and other Title 1 schools. The program consists of an in-school workshop followed by an orchestral performance integrating STEAM and historical concepts (Preserving Coral Reefs and 500 years of FL History).                                                                                                                      | 4,609            | Broward, Miami-Dade, Monroe Counties, FL | No                          |

| Community Foundation of Broward Inc | Starting in 2019, funders in Broward County pooled their dollars to collectively impact organizations helping seniors avoid and overcome the detrimental effects of isolation. Funding partners included the DeLuca Foundation, Community Foundation of Broward, Jewish Family Services, and United Way of Broward. Support totaling $682,583 from this innovative partnership will fuel nine grants to provide over 19,000 seniors home visits, help to combat depression, access to arts programs, transportation and more.                                                                                                                                           | 19,000           | Broward County, FL | No                          |
| Community Foundation of Broward Inc | This grant provides seed funding and partially endows the forthcoming Broward Center for Nonprofit Excellence. Expected to launch in 2022, the Center will serve as Broward's one-stop-shop for nonprofits to build operational capacity, promote collaboration and alignment, inform the public through research, provide resources, and offer training to effectively address community issues. DeLuca funds that are allocated toward the endowment will be matched by other donors, ensuring the sustainability of the program. Funding covers a variety of resources, including Center staff, trainings, grants, shared services, technology, and joint purchasing. | 2,500            | Broward County, FL | No                          |

| United Way of Palm Beach County Inc | As Palm Beach County’s residents face economic and emotional challenges due to COVID-19, nonprofit staff members have become front-line workers who have remained dedicated to the men, women, and children who need them. The Nonprofit Chamber, in partnership with the United Way of Palm Beach County, is launching the “Help the Helpers Initiative” to support morale, mental health, and resilience amongst non-profit staff. The initiative will provide small grants to over 85 nonprofits in Palm Beach County. The grant size will be proportional to the number of staff at each organization. Each nonprofit CEO will identify the best use of the funding for their respective team, such as providing training opportunities that focus on self-care, stress reduction and/or monetary contributions. | 4,850                   | Palm Beach County, FL | No                                |

| Yale New Haven Hospital | Myeloproliferative neoplasms (MPNs) are a closely related group of progressive blood cancers in which the bone marrow typically overproduces one of the mature blood elements. While the typical age of diagnosis is in the 60s, early-onset MPN (EO-MPN) is increasingly common, yet understudied. This study will use birth records and blood specimens of cancer cases diagnosed up to the age of 37 years that are stored in the California Cancer Registry. Seven researchers will work as a team to better understand the environmental, genetic, and early life factors that contribute to the development (etiology) of EO-MPN, ultimately helping us learn how to prevent and treat MPNs. | 6 researchers    | New Haven County, CT | No                          |

Scholarships

Funding Objective:

Fund scholarships that allow students to pursue higher education, increase their career options, fill workforce gaps in the community (nursing, vocational, etc.), and decrease the need for student loans.

Workforce Development

Funding Objectives:

Underemployed and unemployed adults will be on the path to self-sufficiency through job preparation, training, and job placement programs.

Barriers to self-sufficiency will be addressed through a range of support services, including case management and childcare provision.

Encourage cross-sector collaboration—academic, non-profit, and corporate—to help adults learn and practice the skills necessary to thrive in today’s workforce.

Youth Development

Funding Objectives:

At-risk youth, teens and adults will be on the path to self-sufficiency through college and career readiness programs.

At-risk youth will participate in activities and experiences that help them develop social, ethical, emotional, physical, and cognitive competencies.

Encourage cross-sector collaboration—academic, non-profit, and corporate—to help youth and young adults learn and practice the skills necessary to thrive as adults.

| Junior Achievement of South Florida | Funding will launch a new work skills training program to help address the increasing need for skilled workers in the construction industry. This program will recruit, train, and mentor high school youth and place them in a pre-apprenticeship program. Most students are currently unaware of all the opportunities available to them and merely need exposure to a career in the trades. This will be achieved through collaboration with community partners, such as businesses and schools, to inspire excellence and ignite a passion for various fields. | 150              | Broward, Palm Beach Counties, FL | No                          |
